CANTATA No. 21
Ich hatte viel Bekümmernis
(I had a great affliction)
BWV 21
c1714 (or before; the date of composition is uncertain)
text attributed to Salomo Franck (1659-1715), based on I Peter 5:6-11, and Luke 15:1-10 (the Luther German Bible)

Possibly first performed June 17, 1714, the third Sunday of Trinity in the church year. The aria describes the pain of an anguished heart which can only be comforted by the peace of God.

Seufzer, Thränen, Kummer, Noth	[Sighing, weeping, sorrow, need]
Seufzer, Thränen, Kummer, Noth,	Sighs, tears, grief, distress,
ängstlich Sehnen,	nervously watching,
Furcht und Tod	fear and death
nagen mein beklemmtes Herz,	gnaw at my anguished heart,
ich empfinde Jammer, Schmerz.	I feel misery, pain.

CANTATA No. 68
Also hat Gott die Welt geliebt
(Thus has God loved the world)
text possibly by M. von Ziegler (to whom the cantata is dedicated), based on Acts 10:42-48, and John 3:16-21 (the Luther German Bible)

The church cantata was first performed on Whit Monday, May 21, 1725, in Leipzig. The music for "Mein gläubiges Herze" is an enlarged arrangement of "Weil die wollenreichen Herden" from Bach's secular cantata Was mir behagt, ist nur die muntre Jagd (lost).

Mein gläubiges Herze	[My heart ever faithful]
Mein gläubiges Herze,	My faithful heart,
frohlokke, sing', scherze,	rejoice, sing, make merry,
dein Jesus ist nah!	your Jesus is near!
Weg Jammer,	Away misery,
weg Klagen,	away complaining,
ich will euch nur sagen	to you I will say only
mein Jesus ist da.	my Jesus is here.

Dates throughout are for first performances unless otherwise noted. The bracketed aria titles are those used when performing the singing English translation found in the musical score. The notes in this section are by the editor.

MAGNIFICAT

BWV 243a and 243
1723

text taken from Luke 1:46-55, from the Vulgate (the 4th century, authorized Roman Catholic Latin translation of Bible); besides these verses a Magnificat (the canticle of the Virgin) traditionally includes two additional verses of the Lesser Doxology "Gloria Patri et Filio"

Composed for Bach's first Christmas in Leipzig. It was later revised (c1728-1731) and transposed from E-flat to D. The revision replaces recorders with flutes and omits 4 interpolated hymns (laudes), which had previously rendered the text appropriate to the Christmas season. The revised Magnificat was possibly first performed July 2, 1733 for the Feast of the Visitation of Mary. The Magnificat was sung in German for Sunday vespers, and in Latin on Christmas Day.

Quia respexit

This is the third movement of the revised Magnificat (fourth movement of the original version). The text is based on Luke 1:48. Scored for oboe and continuo.

Quia respexit humilitatem	For he has regarded the low estate
ancillæ suæ:	of his handmaiden:
ecce enim ex hoc beatam me	behold, for from this time,
dicent .	may I be called blessed.

PASSIO SECUNDUM JOANNEM

(Johannes-Passion/St. John Passion)
BWV 245

libretto based primarily on Der für die Sünden der Welt gemarterte und sterbende Jesus (Jesus tortured and dying for the sins of the world) by Barthold Heinrich Brockes (1712), with some additional free texts from a 1704 Passion libretto by Christian Heinrich Postel (free text refers to poetry that is not an adaptation or paraphrase of Scripture), with adaptations and additional material by the composer

Composed in 1723, the Passion was first performed on Good Friday, April 7, 1724 at Thomaskirche, Leipzig. The piece was revised, with additions, deletions and substitutions, for performances in 1725, but basically restored to the original version for performances in c1730 and 1740. A Passion is a musical setting of Jesus' sufferings and death as related by one of the four Gospel writers. Brockes' libretto, cited above, was the most often set of Passion librettos by composers in the 18th century.

Ich Folge dir gleichfalls [I follow Thee also]

From Part I (no. 13), the aria is scored for flute (or flutes) and continuo; a free text, largely unaltered from Brockes' libretto. The aria relates Simon Peter's feelings as he follows the bound Jesus, being led away to the high priest, Annas.

Ich folge dir gleichfalls	I follow you also mit freudigen Schritten	with joyful steps
und lasse dich nicht,	and leave you not,
mein Leben, mein Licht.	my life, my light.
Befördre den Lauf	Hasten the flow
und höre nicht auf,	and stop not selbst an mir zu ziehen,	to draw me to yourself
zu schieben, zu bitten.	to lead, to intercede.

Zerfliesse, mein Herze [My heart breaks in anguish]

From Part II (no. 63), scored for flutes, oboes da caccia, and continuo. The free text is from Brocke's libretto. A song of sorrow following the death of Jesus. Bach borrowed from the Gospels of Matthew and Mark, quoting their mention of the temple veil tearing and the earth quaking. This aria follows, at the point where both Gospels mention Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Jesus looking on from afar.

Zerfliesse, mein Herze,	Dissolve, my heart,
in Fluten der Zähren	in floods of tears
dem Höchsten zu Ehren!	the Highest to honor!
Erzähle der Welt	Tell the world
und dem Himmel die Not:	and heaven the sorrow:
Dein Jesus ist tot!	Your Jesus is dead!

PASSIO SECUNDUM MATTHÆUM

(Matthäus-Passion/St. Matthew Passion)
BWV 244
1727 or 1729
libretto by Picander, a pseudonym for Christian Friedrich Henrici (1700-1764); it is probable that the free text poems only were by Henrici (free text refers to poetry that is not a paraphrase or adaptation directly from Scripture), with biblical narrative from the Gospel of Matthew and some chorale texts by the composer

The date of first performance of the Passion is in dispute, occuring at Thomaskirche, Leipzig, on either April 11, 1727 or April 15, 1729. A revised version was performed March 30, 1736. A Passion is a musical setting of Jesus' sufferings and death as related by one of the four Gospel writers

Blute nur du liebes Herz [Bleed and break, thou loving heart]

From Part I (no. 12), scored for flues, strings and continuo. A lament for the mother of Judas Iscariot, following the announcement of his intent to betray Jesus.

Blute nur,	Only bleed,
du liebes Herz!	you beloved heart!
Ach! ein Kind,	Oh, a child
das du erzogen,	that you brought up,
das an deiner Brust gesogen,	that nursed at your breast,
droht den Pfleger zu ermorden,	threatens to murder the guardian denn es ist zur	for (the child) has
Schlange worden.	become the serpent.

Ich will dir mein Herze schenken [Lord, to Thee my heart is given]

From Part I (no. 19), scored for 2 oboes d'amore and continue. An expression of eternal love between Christ and his disciples, following the institution of the Eucharist.

Wiewohl mein Herz in Tränen schwimmt,	Although my heart swims in tears,
dass Jesus von mir Abschied nimmt,	that Jesus departs from me,
so macht mich doch sein Testament erfreut:	I am still delighted by His Testament:
Sein Fleisch und Blut,	His flesh and blood,
o Kostbarkeit,	O precious gift,
vermacht er mir in meine Hände.	He bequeaths into my hands.
Wie er es auf der Welt	As he was in the world
mit denen Seinen nicht böse können meinen,	with those He could never intend to harm,
so liebt er sie bis an das Ende.	so He loves them until the end.
Ich will dir mein Herze schenken,	I will give you my heart,
senke dich,	lower yourself,
mein Heil, hinein!	my salvation, there in!
Ich will mich in dir versenken;	I lose myself in you;
ist dir gleich die Welt zu klein,	as for you the world is too small
ei so sollst du mir allein	so, to me, are you alone
mehr als Welt und Himmel sein.	more than earth and heaven.

WEIHNACHTS-ORATORIUM

(Christmas Oratorio)
BWV 248
1734-1735
text attributed to Picander, a pseudonym for Christian Friedrich Henrici (1700-1764); based on Luke 2:1, 3-12, and Matthew 1:1-12 (the Luther German Bible)

The Weihnachts-Oratorium is actually a collection of six individual church cantatas, designed to be performed at each of the six church events between Christmas and Epiphany. The piece contains newly composed music and adaptations from three secular cantatas (BWV 213-215). The first cantata was first performed on Christmas Day, 1734 at Thomaskirche, Leipzig. The remaining cantatas followed in order on the second and third days following Christmas, on New Year's Day (Feast of the Circumcision), on the Sunday after New Year, and on the Feast of the Epiphany. Performances took place at both Thomaskirche and Nikolaikirche, Leipzig.

Nur ein Wink von seinem Händen [Naught against the pow'r]

From Part 6 (the sixth cantata), Feast of the Epiphany, based on Matthew 2;7-12. A warning to King Herod, who has sent wise men to search for the baby Jesus. He has hidden his intention to kill the child, professing a desire to worship the baby king.

Du Falscher, suche nur den Herrn zu fällen,	You false one, who seeks only the Lord to fell,
nimm alle falsche List, dem Heiland nachzustellen;	take all false cunning to waylay the Savior;
der, desen Kraft kein Mensch ermisst,	He whose strength no one can measure
bleibt doch in sichrer Hand.	remains after all in safe hand.
Dein Herz, dein falsches Herz ist schon,	Your heart, your false heart is already,
nebst aller seiner List, des Höchsten Sohn,	together with all your cunning, to the Highest's Son,
den du zu stürzen suchst, sehr wohl bekannt.	whom you seek to fell, very well known.
Nur ein Wink von seinen Händen	Only a wave from His hands
stürzt ohnmächtger Menschen Macht,	dashes powerless humanity's might,
Hier wird alle Kraft verlacht!	here will all strengh be derided!
Spricht der Höchste nur ein Wort,	Speaks the hightest only a word,
seiner Feinde Stolz zu enden,	his enemy's pride to end,
o, so müssen sich sofort	oh, thus must mortals immediately
Sterblicher Gedanken wenden.	change their thoughts.

CHRISTUS AM ÖLBERGE

(Christ on the Mount of Olives)
Opus 85
1803 libretto by Franz Xaver Huber, based on the Gospel accounts of Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane

First performed April 5, 1803 at the Theater am Wien (Vienna). Revised 1804-1811. The aria is presented in the final form.

Preist des Erlösers Güte

The soprano sings the role of a Seraph who appears to Christ in the Garden of Gethsemane, revealing to him his fate.

Erzittre Erde,	Tremble, earth,
Jehova's Sohn liegt hier!	God's Son lies here!
sein Antlitz tief in Staub gedrückt,	his face deep in dust depressed,
vom Vater ganz verlassen,	by the Father entirely abandonned,
und leidet unnennbare Qual.	and suffers unutterable torment.
Der Gütige!	The benevolent one!
er ist bereit,	He is willing,
den martervollsten Tod	a martyr's death
zu sterben, damit die Menschen,	to die, so that the people, die er liebt,	that he loves,
vom Tode auferstehen	from death arise
und ewig leben!	and eternally live.

Preist des Erlösers Güte,	Praise the Redeemer's kindness,
preist Menschen preist seine Huld!	People praise thy favor!
Er stirbt für euch aus Liebe,	He dies for you out of love, sein Blut tilgt eure Schuld.	His blood wipes out your guilt.
O Heil euch! ihr Erlösten,	O rejoice! you redeemed,
euch winket Seeligkeit,	you receive bliss,
Wenn ihr getreu in Liebe,	when you constant in love,
in Glaub' und Hoffnung seid.	in faith and hope remain.
Doch weh! die frech entehren	But woe the impudent, dishonoring
sas Blut, das für sie floss,	the blood that for them flowed,
sie trifft der Fluch des Richters,	they meet with the curse of the judge,
Verdammung ist ihr Loos.	damnation is their lot.

Gabriel Fauré

REQUIEM

Opus 48
1888
text is from the traditional Latin Requiem Mass of the Roman Catholic liturgy; Requiem ("rest") is a Mass for the dead

The manuscript is dated 1887. First performance at the Church of the Madeleine, Paris, January 16, 1888. Revisions and additions made 1887-1890 and in 1893. The first version (scored for violas, cellos, basses, harp, timpani, organ, and violin solo) included a boy choir and boy soloist, and consisted of five movements: Introit et Kyrie, Sanctus, Pie Jesu, Agnus Dei, and In Paradisum. The 1893 version adds the Offertoire and Libera me and includes adult soloists and brass. The 1900 revision and orchestration expands to full orchestra, adding more strings as well as woodwinds. Fauré's Requiem does not conform to the liturgical requirements of the Roman Catholic Church. The Dies Irae is omitted, except for the last two lines, which appear as the Pie Jesu.

Pie Jesu

Pie Jesu Domine,	Holy Jesus Lord,
Dona eis requiem,	Give them rest,
sempiternam requiem.	eternal rest.

George Frideric Handel
1685-1759

JEPHTHA
1752 libretto by Thomas Morell (1703-1784), quoting and paraphrasing Judges 11, Jephthes Sive Votum (1554) by G. Buchanan, Milton's "Nativing Ode," Addison's "The Campaign," and John Pope's "Essay on Man"

First performance at the Theatre Royal at Covent Garden, London, February 26, 1752. Jephtha was revived in 1758 "with new additions and alterations." The oratorio is based on the story of the Jews' defeat of the Ammonites.

Tune the soft melodious flute

From Act II. In praying for victory, Jephtha has made a vow to sacrifice whoever comes through the doors of his house upon his return if God allows him to win the battle. He returns victorious. Iphis, his daughter, is the first to appear from his house, singing "Tune the soft melodious flute." The aria was one of the additions made for the 1758 Covent Garden revival.

JOSHUA
1748
libretto by Thomas Morell (1703-1784), based on the book of Joshua Composed July and August, 1747. First performance took place March 9, 1748 at Theatre Royal at Covent Garden, London. The oratorio tells the story of the Jewish conquest of Canaan under the leadership of Joshua.

Oh! had I Jubal's lyre

The aria is sung in Act III by Achsas, Caleb's daughter, declaring her love for her fiancé Othaniel, a young chieftan. Handel originally composed the melody in his teens, and it was first used in Psalm Laudate Pueri of 1702.

JUDAS MACCABÆUS
libretto by Thomas Morell (1703-1784), based on the book of the Maccabees and the twelfth book of Josephus' Antiquities of the Jews

Commissioned by Frederic, Prince of Wales. First performed at the Theatre Royal at Covent Garden, April 1, 1747. Revisions and additions were made for frequent new productions, in 1748, then annually from 1750 through 1759. The oratorio relates the restoration of liberty to the Jews under leader Judas Maccabæus.

O liberty, thou choicest treasure

This aria is found in the conductor's score in the composer's handwriting, and the music had first appeared in Handel's Occasional Oratorio (1746). As Judas appeals to the patriotism of the Jews to rouse them in battle, an Israelite woman extols the virtues of liberty.

MESSIAH
text by Charles Jennens (1700-1773), drawn from various biblical sources and the Prayer Book Psalter

Composed between August 22 and September 12, 1741. First performed April 13, 1742 at the Music Hall on Fishamble Street, Dublin. The performance was a benefit for several of the city's charities. The libretto is drawn from the Prophets, the Gospels, the Pauline Epistles, and Revelation, detailing the prophecy of Christ's coming, his life, death resurrection, promise of second coming, and the response of believers. Messiah is theological in nature, not the more common dramatic Handelian oratorio. The soloists are impersonal, and the chorus assumes an expanded role as commentators. Many changes and additions were made in the oratorio, with 13 revisions of the score in the years 1743-1759. Many of the solo movements were sometimes sung by different voice types in different versions and keys, a practice the composer directed.

Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion

From Part I. The text is based on Zechariah 9:9-10. The aria was originally written in 12/8 meter, and was re-composed in 4/4, probably in 1750. The 4/4 version was used exclusively from that time forward by Handel.

I know that my Redeemer liveth

From Part III. The text is based on Job 19:25-26, the words of Job, who is in the depths of despair when sunlight breaks through the clouds, and on I Corinthians 15:20. Though the aria was never fully recomposed, text underlay was variously altered.

If God be for us

From Part III. The text is based on Romans 8:31, 33-34. Though originally composed for soprano, the aria was actually transposed for alto for the first performance in 1742. It was first sung in the original soprano version in 1749.

SAMSON

libretto adapted by Newburgh Hamilton from Milton's Samson Agonistes and other poems

Composed 1741. First performed February 18, 1743, at the Theatre Royal at Covent Garden, London. Additions and revisions were made for performances in 1745 and 1754. The oratorio relates the story from Judges, with the addition of the character of Micah.

Let the bright Seraphim

From Act III. Samson has just pulled down the Philistine temple, and has perished with his enemies in the rubble. Samson's father asks the Israelites to stop mourning and rejoice in his son's heroism. An Israelite woman sings joyfully of the angels united in their praise of Samson. In the context of the complete oratorio the aria has no da capo, but an excerpted performance requires one to complete the form of the music. There is a prominent solo trumpet obbligato in the orchestra part (provided in this edition).

Franz Joseph Haydn

1732-1809

DIE JAHRESZEITEN

(The Seasons)
1801 libretto by Baron Gottfried van Swieten after "The Seasons," a lengthy pastoral poem by James Thomson, translated into German by Barthold Heinrich Brockes

Begun in 1799, the oratorio was first performed May 20, 1801. Under Haydn's direction and consent, a singing English translation by Swieten (adapting the original poem by Thomson) was included in the first edition of the oratorio, published in 1802 by Breikopf & Härtel. (A German-French edition was also released at the same time.) The aria below is from Summer.

Welche Labung für die Sinne	[Oh how pleasing]
Wilkommen jetzt, o dunkler Hain,	Welcome now, o shady grove,
wo der bejahrten Eiche Dach	where the aged oak dome
den kühlenden Schirm gewährt,	which cooling shelter has been,
und wo der schlanken Espe Laub	and where the slim Aspen leaves
mit leisem Gelispel rauscht!	with faint whisper rustle!
Am weichen Moose rieselt da	On the soft moss trickles here in heller Flut der Bach,	in clear flood the brook,
und frölich summend irrt und wirrt	and cheerful hum, confused and jumbled,
die bunte Sonnenbrut.	the bright colored sun-brood.
Der Kräuter reinen Balsam-duft	The herbs clean balmy-scent
verbreitet Zephirs Hauch,	spread Zephyr's breath,
und aus dem nahen Busche tönt	and from the nearby thicket sounds
des jungen Schäfers Rohr.	the young shepherds reed-flute.

Welche Labung für die Sinne!	What refreshment for the senses!
Welch' Erholung für das Herz!	What recovery for the heart!
Jeden Aderzweig durchströmet,	Through each vein streams,
und in jeder Nerve bebt	and in each nerve shakes
erquikkendes, erquikkendes Gefühl.	revived, revived feeling.
Die Seele wachet auf	The soul awakes
zum reizenden Genuss,	to the enticing pleasure,
und neue Kraft erhebt	and new strength uplifts
durch milden Drang die Brust.	by gentle pressure, the breast.

DIE SCHÖPFUNG
Ein Oratorium für jeden Geschmack und jede Zeit

THE CREATION
An Oratorio for All Tastes and Times 1798 libretto attributed to T. Linley or Lidley (sources are unclear about his name), translated from the original English to German and abridged by Baron Gottfried van Swieten, based on chapters from Genesis, selected Psalms, and paraphrases of Milton's Paradise Lost Composition began in 1796. A first, private performance of the oratorio was given April 30, 1798 at the Schwartzenberg Palais (preceded by an open rehearsal April 29). First public performance given March 19, 1799. Haydn composed the piece in German, but the English version followed quickly, being basically the original libretto adapted by Swieten. (One of the primary manuscript scores used by Haydn to conduct has both German and English.) English was included in the first published edition, 1800. Since it was the composer's intention that the piece be heard in English in English-speaking countries, in the editor's opinion that is the appropriate language in those locales.

In 1801 Haydn composed a Mass in B-flat that is known as Schöpfungmesse (Creation Mass), but this piece is entirely different from the oratorio Die Schöpfung. (In the "qui tollis" of the mass Haydn quotes from the oratorio Die Schöpfung.)

Nun beut die Flur [With verdure clad]

From Part I. In the recitative Gabriel, the soprano role, quotes Genesis 1:11. In the aria Gabriel breaks into song over the beauty that has just been created.

Und Gott sprach:	And God spoke:
Es bringe die Erde Gras hervor,	Let the earth bring forth grass,
Kräuter, die Samen geben,	herbs, which yiled seeds,
und Obstbäume, die Früchte bringen	and fruit trees, whose harvests yield
ihrer Art gemäss,	according to their species,
die ihren Samen in sich selbst haben	which have their seeds inside themselves
auf der Erde,	on the earth,
und es ward so.	and it was so.
Nun beut die Flur das frische Grün	Now the fresh green meadow dem Auge zur Ergötzung dar;	which delights the eye;
den anmuthsvollen Blick	the charming appearance
erhöht der Blumen sanfter Schmuck.	is enhanced by flower's tender ornament.
Hier duften Kräuter Balsam aus;	Here the balsam herbs are fragrant;
hier sprosst den Wunden Heil.	here sprouts the healing plant.
Der Zweige krümmt der goldnen Früchte Last;	the branch bends with golden fruit's weight
hier wölbt der Hain zum kühlen	here arches the grove in cool
Schirme sich; den steilen Berg	protective cover; the steep mountain bekrönt ein dichter Wald.	is crowned with a thick forest.

Auf starkem Fittige [On mighty pens]

From Part II. Gabriel quotes Genesis 1:20 in the recitative. The aria is about the beauty and grace of birds in response to the verse of the recitative. "Pens," meaning wings, is a poetic reference to quill feathers of birds.

Und Gott sprach:	And God spoke:
Es bringe das Wasser	Let the water bring forth
in der Fülle hervor webende Geschöpfe,	in abundance the moving creatures,
die Leben haben, und Vögel,	that have life, and birds,
die über der Erde fliegen mögen	which over the earth may fly
in dem offenen Firmamente des Himmels.	in the open firmament of the heavens.
Auf starkem Fittige schwinget sich	On strong wings soars
der Adler stolz,	the proud eagle,
und teilet die Luft,	and through the air,
im schnellesten Fluge zu Sonne hin.	in the swiftest flying up to the sun.
Den Morgen grüsst der Lerche frohes Lied,	The lark greets the morning with happy song, und Liebe, girrt das zarte Taubenpaar.	and love, the tender pair of doves coo.
Aus jedem Busch und Hain erschallt	From every bush and grove resounds
der Nachtigallen süsse Kehle,	the nightingale's sweet fluting, noch drückte Gram nicht ihre Brust,	no grief yet pressures his breast,
noch war zur Klage nicht gestimmt	still no lamentation tunes
ihr reizender Gesang.	his charming song.

1767
text is traditional Latin from the Roman Catholic liturgy, a 13th century sequence attributed to the Franciscan Jacopone da Todi

Composed 1767, Eszterháza. No record of a performance exists from around that time, but the work was performed in the 1770s at Piaristenkirche in Vienna, conducted by the composer. Stabat Mater (literally translated as "mother standing") refers to Mary standing at the base of the cross. The text of the Stabat Mater is still used in the Roman Catholic Church for the Feast of the Seven Sorrows (September 15).

Quis non posset

Quis non posset contristari,	Who would not be saddened,
piam Matrem contemplari,	contemplating Christ's mother,
dolentem cum filio?	sharing her Son's grief?

ELIJAH
(Elias)
Opus 70
1846
libretto by Julius Schubring, after I Kings 17-19, II Kings 2, and other biblical passages; English libretto by William Bartholomew

Composed summer of 1846. First performed August 26, 1846, at the Birmingham Festival, England. William Bartholomew was given the Elijah libretto in the middle of May, 1846, and was engaged to translate it into English for the August premiere, receiving sections as they were completed. Mendelssohn and Schubring had used Luther's translation of the Bible, interpolating and paraphrasing liberally. Bartholomew's task was not only to translate, but also to make the text agree with the King James Bible. He added the following disclaimer to the libretto of Elijah: "The author of this English version has endeavored to render it as nearly in accordance with the Scriptural Texts as the Music to which it is adapted will admit: the references are therefore to be considered rather as authorities than quotations."

The aria is presented in both English, the language of the premiere, and German, the working language of Mendelssohn's composition. It may be assumed that the composer intended for English speaking audiences to hear the piece in the vernacular.

Hear ye, Israel! (Höre, Israel)

The text for the aria, which opens Part II of the oratorio, is based on Isaiah 41:10, 48:1,18, 51:12-13, 53:1. Originally written for the voice of soprano Jenny Lind; expanded and reconstructed for performances in 1847.

MASS IN C MINOR
K. 427 (417a)
text is the traditional Latin Mass from the Roman Catholic liturgy

The "Grand" (or "Great") Mass in C minor was first performed October 26, 1783 at St. Peter's Abbey, Salzburg. Left incomplete at the time of the premiere, Mozart perhaps filled in the missing sections with parts of earlier mass settings, or perhaps they were sung as chant in the performance. The composer never completed the work. There is no Agnus Dei. Only the "Et incarnatus est" exists of the Credo section. The Sanctus section is fragmentary.

Laudamus te

The edition of "Laudamus te" that appears in this volume may not be familiar to some. The Breitkopf & Härtel edition that was published in 1901, edited by Alois Schmitt, often reprinted (it is the G. Schirmer edition in use in the U.S.), contains an abridged version of the movement. The Schmitt edition was the only edition available for several decades. The edition in this anthology is based on the autograph full score. The role is for a second soprano, but may be sung by a mezzo-soprano. (This number has also been included in the alto volume of this anthology.)

Laudamus te	We praise Thee,
Benediciums te,	we bless thee,
Adoramus te,	we adore Thee,
Glorificamus te.	we glorify Thee.

VESPERAE SOLENNES DE CONFESSORE
(Solemn Vespers)
K. 339
text is traditional Latin, from the Vulgate (the 4th century, authorized Roman Catholic Latin translation of the Bible), from the Roman Catholic liturgy

Composed 1780 for the Salzburg Cathedral, probably intended for a Festum Pallii (an important feast day), although there is no record of a performance there. Vespers is the seventh canonical office in the Roman Catholic liturgy, celebrated at sunset. Its principle elements are Psalms, the canticle Magnificat, and their antiphons. "Laudate Dominum" is the fifth section of this Vespers, based on Psalm 117 in the Vulgate (Psalm 118 in the Protestant Bible).

Laudate Dominum

Laudate Dominum omnes gentes,	Praise the Lord all nations,
laudate eum omnes populi	praise Him all ye people
Quoniam confirmata est supernos misericordia ejus,	For his merciful kindness is great toward us,
et veritas Domini manet in æternum.	and the truth of the Lord endureth forever.

Giovanni Battista Pergolesi
1710-1736

STABAT MATER
1736
text is traditional Latin from the Roman Catholic liturgy, a 13th century sequence attributed to the Franciscan Jacopone da Todi

First performed March 17, 1736, Naples. Traditionally believed to have been commissioned by the Confraternity of San Luigi di Palazzo, Naples, although there is evidence that shows Duke Marzio Domenico IV Carafa Maddaloni as the patron. Stabat Mater (literally translated as "mother standing") refers to Mary standing at the base of the cross. The text of the Stabat Mater is still used in the Roman Catholic Church for the Feast of the Seven Sorrows (September 15).

Cujus animam gementem

Cujus animam gementem,	Whose soul laments
contristantem et dolentem	sorrowful and anguished
pertransivit gladius.	pierced by a sword.

Vidit suum dulcem natum

Vidit suum dulcem natum	[She] saw her sweet child
moriendo desolatum,	dying forsaken,
dum emisit spiritum.	until he sent forth his spirit.

Henry Purcell

COME YE SONS OF ART 1694 libretto attributed to Nahum Tate (1652-1715)

A secular ode written for the birthday celebration of Queen Mary II, this is the sixth and final birthday ode by Purcell, first performed April 30, 1694. The piece is scored for flutes, oboes, trumpets, drums, strings, and continuo.

Bid the Virtues, bid the Graces

Gioachino Rossini
1792-1868

STABAT MATER
1832; 1842
text is traditional Latin from the Roman Catholic liturgy, a 13th century sequence attributed to the Franciscan Jacopone da Todi

First performed on Good Friday, 1833 at Cappella di San Filippo El Real, Madrid. Due to illness, Rossini requested that Giovanni Tadolini compose six of the twelve sections in order to complete the work for the premiere. In 1841 Rossini replaced the six Tadolini movements with new composition. The revised Stabat Mater was first performed January 7, 1842 at the Théâtre Italien, Paris. Stabat Mater (literally translated as "mother standing") refers to Mary standing at the base of the cross. The text of the Stabat Mater is still used in the Roman Catholic Church for the Feast of the Seven Sorrows (September 15).

Inflammatus et accensus

The aria prominently features the chorus.

Inflammatus et accensus	Inflamed and in flames
per te, Virgo, sim defensus	through the Virgin I am defended in die judicii.	in the day of judgement.
Fac me cruce custodiri,	May I by the cross be guarded
morte Christi præmuniri,	by the death of Christ made safe,
confoveri gratia.	by Thy eternal grace.

Antonio Vivaldi
1669-1741

GLORIA
RV 589
text is the traditional Gloria section from the Latin Mass of the Roman Catholic liturgy

This is the second of two D major Glorias composed by Vivaldi. No exact chronology of Vivaldi's sacred works exists, but both Glorias are believed to have been written after 1708. The first modern performance of this Gloria took place in Siena, Italy, in 1939.

Domine Deus

Domine Deus,	Lord God,
Rex cœlestis,	heavenly king,
Deus Pater omnipotens.	God the Father Almighty.
