I will go with my father a-ploughing.

I will go with my father a-ploughing
To the green field by the sea,
And the rooks and the crows and the seagulls
Will come flocking after me.
I will sing to the patient horses
With the lark in the shine of the air,
And my father will sing the plough-song
That blesses the cleaving share.

I will go with my father a-sowing
To the red field by the sea,
And the rooks and the gulls and the starlings
Will come flocking after me.
I will sing to the striding sowers
With the finch on the flowering sloe,
And my father will sing the seed-song
That only the wise men know.

I will go with my father a-reaping
To the brown field by the sea,
And the geese and the crows and the children
Will come flocking after me.
I will sing to the weary reapers
With the wren in the heat of the sun,
And my father will sing the scythe-song
That joys for the harvest done.

JOSEPH CAMPBELL

Cherry Valley.

In Cherry Valley the cherries blow;
The valley paths are white as snow.

And in their time with clusters red
The heavy boughs are crimsoned.

Now the low moon is looking thro'
The glimmer of the honey dew.

A petal trembles to the grass,
The feet of fairies pass and pass.

JOSEPH CAMPBELL

I wish and I wish.

I wish and I wish
And I wish I were
A golden bee
In the blue of the air,
Winging my way
At the mouth of day
To the honey marges
Of Loch-ciuin-ban*;
Or a little green drake,
Or a silver swan,
Floating upon
The stream of Aili,
And I to be swimming
Gaily, gaily.

I wish and I wish
And I wish I could be
A bud on a branch
Of the red thorn tree
That blows at the head
Of Blanaid's† Bed,
And sheds a petal
At every breath;
Or a white milestone
On the shining path
That climbs the cairn
And dips the hollow,
Up to the walls
Of bright Magh-meala★

If wishes were fairies
I would not stay,
But they would wile
My soul away;
And peace would creep
Into my sleep
As soft as a dream
At evenfall,
When the crickets sing
And the curlews call;
And 'tis I would wake
For no new morrow
On the grey round
Of this world of sorrow.

JOSEPH CAMPBELL.

*pronounced "Lock-Kyoon-bawn," the fair, calm lake. †pronounced "Blanid." ★pronounced "Moy-malla," the plain of honey
